The LibreTexts mission is to unite students, faculty and scholars in a cooperative effort to develop an easy-to-use online platform for the construction, customization, and dissemination of OER content to reduce the burdens of unreasonable textbook costs to our students and society. The LibreTexts project is a multi-institutional collaborative venture to develop the next generation of open-access texts to improve postsecondary education at all levels of higher learning by developing an Open Access Resource environment. The project currently consists of 14 independently operating and interconnected libraries that are constantly being optimized by students, faculty, and outside experts to supplant conventional paper-based books. These free textbook alternatives are organized within a central environment that is both vertically (from advance to basic level) and horizontally (across different fields) integrated.

Spanish Grammar (See webpage for complete content)

8. The Indefinite Article / El artículo indeterminado

• English "a" or "an" is expressed in Spanish by un / una: un cuaderno – una pluma The plural, unos/unas, is used for symmetrical objects, meaning "a set of" or "a pair of":

Necesito unas tijeras. I need a pair of scissors. Bajas por unas escaleras. You go down a stairway.

• Spanish does not use the indefinite article before words denoting occupations, religions, political affiliation or nationality; they are treated as adjectives:

Es inglés.
Mi hermano es demócrata.
No soy budista.
¿Eres estudiante?
Tu vecino es abogado.
He is English, an Englishman.
My brother is a Democrat.
I am not a Buddhist.
Are you a student?
Your neighbor is a lawyer.

But when such words are qualified by an adjective, the article is used:

Es un inglés muy tradicional.
No soy una norteamericana típica.
He is a very traditional Englishman.
I am not a typical American woman.

• Spanish uses the indefinite article less frequently than English. Since un / una also means one, the article is redundant for things normally encountered one at a time:

Tengo fiebre.
¿Tienes familia?
¿Se necesita visa?
La mujer llevaba sombrero.
Habla con acento extranjero.
No puedes manejar sin licencia.
Use esto como guía.

I have a fever.
Do you have a family?
Is a visa needed?
The woman was wearing a hat.
He speaks with a foreign accent.
You cannot drive without a license.
Use this as a guide.

Pay attention to these differences as you read. Note that the indefinite article is used to emphasize the individuality of a noun modified by an adjective (as seen also in the case of professions and nationalities): Tiene una fiebre terrible.

▶ Never use un / una before the word otro/a :
otro ejemplo	otra situación	otra vez
another example	another situation	another time, one more time

Other common expressions not requiring the indefinite article in Spanish:

¡Qué día!	¡Qué año tan largo!
What a day!	What a long year!

Medio kilo de patatas.	Media vida.
Half a kilogram of potatoes.	Half a lifetime.
Es para cierta persona. It is for a certain person.	Cierto encanto. A certain charm.

PRÁCTICA 8. Añada el artículo indeterminado cuando sea necesario.

Ejemplo: Hoy tengo _un_ examen difícil, y tengo _X_ otro examen mañana.

There are four forms: el, la, los, las.

A. USAGE OF THE DEFINITE ARTICLE. Spanish uses it more often than English:

A1. Before nouns intended in a general sense and all abstract nouns:

Los mexicanos adoran las fiestas.
La gente piensa que el dinero es vital.
La libertad es esencial en la vida
Me gusta el pescado.
Me interesa la política.

Mexicans love parties.
People think that money is vital.
Freedom is essential in life.
I like fish.
I am interested in politics.

A2. Before languages, illnesses, sports, sciences, and other fields of knowledge:

El inglés es fácil.

Lucha contra el cáncer.

Me interesa el fútbol.
Así es la biología

English is easy.
Fight against cancer.
I am interested in soccer.
Such is biology.

BUT: The article is often omitted after de and en, and after hablar, estudiar, tener and saber:

El libro está en español. Hay una clase de tenis. The book is in Spanish. There is a tennis class. I don't speak French.

A3. Before most titles when speaking about someone:

El escritor mexicano Octavio Paz ganó el premio Nobel en 1992. El señor García habla con el coronel Páez sobre la reina Isabel.

But not when speaking to the person being addressed by their title: "Buenos días, señor García".

A4. Unlike English, before common words such as cama, escuela, trabajo, guerra, cárcel, ciudad, iglesia, clase:

No piensan en el trabajo.
Están en la cárcel.
Leen para la clase.
Vivo en la ciudad de México.

They do not think about work.
They are in jail.
They're reading for class.
I live in Mexico City.

(except in stock phrases such as "at war": en guerra, or "in class": en clase).

A5. In the names of a few countries and cities such as la República Dominicana, Los Ángeles, La Paz, El Salvador, and with any country or region name when it is qualified by an adjective: La España turística, el Perú moderno. But: Vivo en España.

B. CONTRACTIONS AL AND DEL

The prepositions a and de contract with the masculine singular article to form the only two written, mandatory contractions in Spanish, al and del: al norte (a + el) • del planeta (de + el)

PRÁCTICA 9A. Complete las oraciones con el artículo determinado cuando sea necesario.

Ejemplo: Me gustan _los_ libros en _X_ español.

C. OTHER PRECULIARITIES IN THE USE OF ARTICLES.

C1. Articles, either definite or indefinite, are not used when an idea of amount or quantity is implied (if the words *any*or some could be inserted in English):

Hay gente que no come carne.
Pedimos vino y nos dan agua.
Viven sin libertad, pero con dinero.
Leo libros con frecuencia.
Quieren uvas para el desayuno.
Tiene éxito sin esfuerzo.

There are (some) people who do not eat (any) meat.
We ask for (some) wine and they give us water.
They live without (any) freedom but with (some) money.
I read (a number of) books frequently.
They want grapes for breakfast.
She succeeds without (any) effort.

Note that hay (there is/are) always indicates a certain quantity, so it is never followed by the definite article: Hay conflictos y no hay libertad. Hay un problema

C2. Occasionally, unos/as expresses some when it means "a few," "a number of" or "about"

(→ but algunos/as is a more common way to express "some".

Todavía tengo unos dólares.	I still have some (a few) dollars.
Hay unas diez personas.	There are some (about) ten people.

C3. Spanish has a neuter article, lo, used with an adjective (masculine, singular) to express abstract concepts. Its meaning is very much like the English "the + adjective + thing":

Eso es lo interesante.	That is the interesting thing.
Lo malo es que nos gusta.	The bad thing about it is that we like it.
Lo bueno, lo malo y lo feo de la vida.	The good, the bad and the ugly in life.
Lo difícil de los idiomas es la gramática.	The difficult part of languages is grammar.

Spanish Grammar in Context

Subject Pronouns

singular		plural
1st person	yo I	nosotros/nosotras we
2nd person	tú you
3rd person	él/ella/usted he/she/formal you	ellos/ellas/ustedes they/you plural

A pronoun replaces a noun in order to avoid repetition. Subject pronouns function as the subject of a verb. Unlike English, the use of subject pronouns is optional in Spanish. Many dialects of Spanish only use subject pronouns for emphasis or in cases where it is not clear who the subject is. Notice in the example below how the English translation makes use of 5 subject pronouns, while Spanish only uses 1.

Entonces se bajó, y agarró su hacha o su pico que traía, creo que era un pico, y tumbó la puerta como pudo y allí estaba yo tirado en el suelo muy, muy mal, morado desde el cuello hasta los pies. So he bent down and grabbed his hatchet or his pickaxe that he brought, I think it was a pickaxe, and he broke down the door the best he could and I was there sprawled on the floor very very sick, purple from my neck down to my feet.

Subject pronouns are labelled by the term person, referring to the subject's role in the conversation. 1st person refers to the person(s) speaking (I, we); 2nd person to the person(s) spoken to (you); and 3rd person to the person(s) or thing(s) spoken about (he, she, it, they).

There are two other subject pronouns that aren't often mentioned in introductory Spanish courses: vosand vosotros. Vos is used in Argentina for the informal second person singular (you) instead of tú. In several other countries, vos is also used along with tú: in Central America (El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica) and the Southern Cone (Paraguay, Bolivia, Chile and Uruguay) So rather than replacing tú these countries often make use of vos, tú and Usted to mark different degrees of formality when talking to someone.

Cuando va mi papá allá, lo primero que le dice – mi hijo está interesado en vos – sin ningún cuidado. When my dad goes over there, the first thing he says to her is "my son is interested in you", without a care.

Chart: Countries that Use "Vos"

Vostros is used only in Spain and Equatorial Guinea. In these countries, vosotros is used for informal second person plural (like you guys in English) and Ustedes is used for the formal plural you. In the rest of the Spanish-speaking world Ustedes is used for both formal and informal.

Chart: Countries that Use "Vosotros"

Yo

Unlike the English pronoun I, yo is not capitalized unless it begins a sentence.

Τú

The pronoun $t\acute{u}$ is singular and, importantly, informal. Use $t\acute{u}$ to address people your own age and those you know well.

Usted

The pronoun usted is singular and formal. Despite of its meaning (you), grammatically it is a third person pronoun, meaning that it will always be used with third person verbs: Usted es

Ellos/ellas

Ellos and ellas agree with the gender of the noun they replace. Ellas is used to mean they if it replaces people who are all women. On the other hand, ellos is used for a group of all men or any group where there is at least one male person in the group.

Ustedes

The pronoun ustedes is always plural. Despite of its meaning (you/y'all), grammatically it is a third person pronoun, meaning that it will always be used with third person verbs: Ustedes son.

2.4: Uses of ser and estar

Spanish Grammar (See webpage for complete content)

Libro digital Herramientas de español Spanish Tools Online Grammar Book

25. Uses of ser and estar

A. SER, from the Latin essere associated with the word essence, is used:

A1. to identify or define a subject (to say what something is):

El hermano es ingeniero. Es a ella a quien busco. Esto es un problema.

Este poema es para mi abuelo. El programa es sobre arte.

A2. with de to denote origin, material, or ownership:

Es de madera. Es de Panamá. Es de Juan. Son de la clase alta.

A3. only with adjectives that denote essential or defining qualities (including pobre, rico, joven, viejo.): Nueva York es grande. Voy a ser rico.

A4. in expressions of time, dates, and for quantities:

Son las tres y media. Hoy es jueves dos de marzo. Son treinta dólares.

A5. in impersonal expressions:

Es posible saber eso. Es importante cuidar la salud.

For the use of ser with past participle (passive voice), see §41.

B. ESTAR, from the Latin stare associated with the words state and station, is used:

B1. to express location [ubicación] (to say where something is):

El profesor no está aquí. El problema está en su actitud. Panamá está al sur de Centroamérica.

BUT: Use ser to describe where an event is taking place: El concierto es aquí.

B2. with some adjectives and all adverbs, to describe states and conditions or a change in a characteristic:

Está bien. Están tristes porque el perro está muerto.

Estamos interesados en el tema. El país está en una situación difícil.

El rojo está de moda (in fashion). Las ventanas están cerradas.

B3. with a present participle* to express a continuing action:

Estamos viajando. Van a estar durmiendo.

*the present participle in English (-ing form of a verb) is the equivalent of the -ndo form, called gerundio in Spanish.

For the use of estar with past participle (states), see §26.

Some adjectives have different meanings when used with the two verbs:
estar listo/a to be ready (state) ¿Estás lista, María? ser lista/o to be bright (defining quality) María es muy lista.
estar aburrido to be bored (state) Estoy aburrido con esta novelo ser aburrido to be boring (defining quality) Esta novela es muy aburrida.

2.6: Consonants and Vowels

Vowels and Consonants (See webpage for complete content)

Libro digital Herramientas de español Spanish Tools Online Grammar Book

1. Consonants / Las consonantes

Spanish spelling is pretty consistent: most letters represent a single sound regardless of their position in a word. Note the following peculiarities:

 $\mathbf{H} - la\ hache$ is never pronounced. Thus, words like Honduras, ahora and alcohol have no aspiration before the /o/ sound.

CH – la che is always pronounced as in "cheers": coche, ocho.

La hache is not combined with any other consonants: there is no th, sh, ph, gh, etc. (English "ph" may translate to "f": filosofía, Filadelfia, fantasma).

 $C - la\ ce$ is pronounced /k/ (as in "case") in most positions: caso, cosa, cuota, frecuente, crisis.

- Before -e, -i, it is pronounced /s/ (as in "sin") in America or /th/ (as in "thin") in Spain: cielo, acento.
- The /k/ sound (as in "kiss"), is spelled "qu" (mute "u") before -e,-i: queso, quince.

G – la ge is pronounced /g/ (as in "go") in most positions: gala, gota, guante, globo.

- Before -e, -i, it is pronounced almost like /h/ (as in "hen"): general, gitano.
- The /g/ sound (as in "get"), is spelled "gu" (mute "u") before -e,-i: guerra, guitarra.

Figure If the letter "u" is to be pronounced in a "gue/gui" combination, it is marked with a diaeresis (la diéresis): pingüino, bilingüe, nicaragüense.

Z – la zeta is pronounced /s/ in America and /th/ in Spain.

Spanish avoids the ze/zi combination and prefers ce, ci: lápiz → lápices ; cebra, cenit.

Only four consonants can be duplicated to represent specific sounds:

- cc is used before "e" or "i" only and sounds /ks/ (/kth/ in Spain): acción and acceso but acento, ocurrir.
- Il sounds /y/: calle, llama but ilegal, aludir, inteligente.
- rr represents the famous "rolling r" between vowels only: perro, carro vs. pero, caro.
- nn is used only when a prefix ending in "n" is added to a word beginning with "n": innecesario, connotación, but anual, anotación, conexión.

No other consonants are duplicated in Spanish: efectivo, común, oportunidad, imposible, adición.

Summary / Resumen
Never pronounce the letter H (hache): alcohol, ahora, humano, Honduras, holocausto.
Hard C sound: /k/ as in kiss S/Z sound:/s/ or /th/ as in sink/think Hard G sound: /g/ as in get Soft G sound: /h/ as in hen	ca que qui co cu za ce ci zo zu ga gue gui go gu ja je ji jo ju ge gi	bus ca r, bus qué reali za r, reali cé pa ga r, pa gué hi ja , gi tano
As you see, vowels e and i are exceptional in their combination with g and c. The words que , quien , guerra and guitarra may help you remember these spelling changes.

PRÁCTICA 1. Escriba en español el equivalente de las siguientes palabras, notando la ortografía (spelling).

2. Vowels / Las vocales

Spanish has five vowel sounds -a, e, i, o, u-, pronounced the same way regardless of their position in a word:

- a. like the a sound in "father": casa, alma
- e. like the e sound in"let": lee, cena
- i. like the ee sound in "leek": mil, millaje
- o. like the aw sound in "lawn": son, hoja
- u. like the oo sound in "loom": tú, Honduras (u is mute in que, qui, gue, gui)
- i and u are called "weak" (débiles o cerradas) because, in combination with another vowel, are generally pronounced as one syllable: Ruiz, fue, dio, have only one syllable. These are considered true diphthongs in Spanish —two vowels in one syllable —, as in a·gua or vien·to.
- a, o, and e are called "strong" (fuertes o abiertas). Two strong vowels are pronounced as two syllables: $po \cdot e \cdot ma$ has three syllables, $ca \cdot os$ has two. These are not true diphthongs, since the vowels belong in different syllables.

Tengo que viajar a otro país. I have to travel to another country. Tengo muchas cosas que hacer. I have a lot of things to do.

Since the literal meaning of these phrases is "I have hunger", etc., Spanish uses adjectives where English needs adverbs such as "very":

Tenemos mucho sueño.
Tengo demasiada hambre.

We are vey sleepy.
I am too hungry.

ar Verbs (Regular) Present Tense

-ar verbs from the Spanish in Texas Corpus hablar 'to speak'

yo hablo	nosotros/as hablamos
tú hablas
él/ella/usted habla	ellos/as/ustedes hablan
past participle: hablado

Of the three verb groups (-ar, -er, -ir), -ar verbs are the most numerous. To conjugate, drop the -ar from the infinitive to form the stem. Next, add endings to the stem. The following example has three -ar verbs cambiar, estudiar, tomar conjugated in the present tense:

Pero te cambia mucho en la perspectiva ya cuando estudias más grande porque ya el estudio, ya lo tomas con mucha seriedad.But it changes you in your perspective when you study as an adult because now your studies, you take it much more seriously.Present tense endings: -o, -as, -a, -amos, -an

Libro digital Herramientas de español Spanish Tools Online Grammar Book

11. Adjectives / Los adjetivos

A. FORMATION AND AGREEMENT / FORMACIÓN Y CONCORDANCIA

Adjectives must agree with the noun they refer to (that is, if the noun is feminine plural, then the adjective must be too). They can be next to the noun or separated from it:

Los países diversos. Los países latinoamericanos son muy diversos.

Hay gente honesta. Hay gente que es siempre muy honesta.

- Most adjectives ending in -a or -o have four forms to agree with a noun if it's masculine (-o), feminine (-a), or plural (-os, -as): día largo, clase larga, días largos, clases largas.
- Adjectives ending in -sta or -ta like idealista, egoísta, idiota, etc., are the same in the masculine and feminine (indígena also): un hombre idealista, sociedades capitalistas, políticos demócratas, un texto indígena.
- Most adjectives ending in -e or a consonant are also the same in the masculine and feminine: una profesora inteligente, un poema difícil, ensayos útiles, novelas importantes.
- A few adjectives ending in consonants do have separate feminine forms. The most common of these are adjectives of nationality and those ending in (-or):

una estudiante alemana, ciudades inglesas, mujer trabajadora.

• Adjectives that qualify nouns of mixed gender are masculine:

El flamenco y la paella son españoles.

Las novelas y los poemas son artísticos.

- The adjectives bueno and malo are shortened to buen and mal before masculine singular nouns: un buen amigo, un mal día (but: buenos amigos, malos días).
- Grande shortens to gran before a singular noun, masculine or feminine: un gran país, una gran mujer (but: grandes países, grandes mujeres).

PRÁCTICA 11A.

1. Formación de femeninos. Escriba la forma femenina del adjetivo en negritas.

Ejemplo: Es un amigo sincero y sus palabras también son sinceras .

2. Concordancia. Escriba la traducción adecuada del adjetivo que está entre paréntesis en inglés.

Ejemplo: los peruanos inteligentes (intelligent)

B. PLACEMENT / POSICIÓN EN LA ORACIÓN

• Descriptive adjectives that distinguish one noun from another tend to follow the noun:

Es un médico sensato.Un problema nacional.

El automóvil rojo y la casa verde.

• When modified by an adverb, adjectives almost always follow:

Un hombre muy bueno.

Una clase increíblemente aburrida.

• The adjective grande means "great" when used before the noun, "large" when used after:

Barcelona es una gran ciudad. Es también una ciudad grande.

Barcelona is a great city. It is also a large city.

• Adjectives of quantity (cantidad), which do not stress difference, precede the noun: muchos amigos, tres hermanos, algunos individuos demasiados problemas, ambas manos, varios temas, ninguna letra.

PRÁCTICA 11B. Reemplace el sustantivo subrayado por el que aparece entre paréntesis, y haga los cambios necesarios:

Ejemplo: Tengo algunas

dificultades, pero no son muy serias. (problemas)

→ Tengo algunos problemas, pero no son muy serios .

C. NOMINALIZATION ("...the green one," "...the old ones")

• While English usually avoids repeating nouns by the use of the word "one", Spanish simply leaves out the noun, keeping the article (el, la, los, las), which in such case acts as a pronoun (artículo pronominal).

El estilo español y el inglés.	The Spanish style and the English one.
Los días buenos y los malos.	Good days and bad ones.
La casa de la ciudad y la del campo.	The house in the city and the one in the countryside.

• Similarly, with the possessive expressions rendered in English with 's (John's books) and in Spanish with de, the article is used to avoid repetition:

Los actos de Juan y los de Pedro. Juan's actions and Pedro's.

PRÁCTICA 11C. Complete las oraciones con las terminaciones y los artículos adecuados.

Ejemplo: Necesito la camisa amarill a, no la roj a.

D. COMPOUND NOUNS (coffee cup, Spanish book, writing paper)

Spanish cannot put two nouns together in this way. Link them with a preposition, usually de:

el papel para escribir	los zapatos de cuero
writing paper	leather shoes
las clases de español	las vacaciones de verano
Spanish classes	summer vacation
el horario de oficina	productor/a de cine
office schedule	film producer

18. Stem-Changing Verbs / Verbos que cambian de raíz

All Spanish verbs have a stem (la raíz) and an ending (-ar, -er, -ir): pensar, volver, pedir. There is a large group of verbs that change their stem in the present tense when the stem vowel is stressed. There are three types: those that change -e to -ie-, those that change -e- to -ue- and those that change -e- to -i-i-:

to think:	to come back:	to ask (for):
pensar (ie) pienso piensas piensa pensamos pensáis piensan	volver (ue) vuelvo vuelves vuelve volvemos volvéis vuelven	pedir (i) pido pides pide pedimos pedís piden

Common verbs following these patterns in the present tense:

- e > ie: cerrar, comenzar, empezar, entender, pensar, perder, preferir, querer, sentir
- e > i: elegir, (im)pedir, seguir, servir, (son)reír
- o > ue: contar, dormir, encontrar, morir, mostrar, poder, resolver, volar, volver

Jugar has a different stem change, from u to ue in the same places: juego, juegas, juegamos, jugáis, juegan.

Note: All -ir stem-changing verbs change their stems in other tenses (see appendix A).
